Dear Ambassador:

I saw Mrs. Peckham yesterday at Southampton. I was glad to find her better. On the steamer she had an attack of obstruction of the bowels which looked very serious. Since landing she has steadily improved, and though there are transient attacks of pain it looks now as though she would get over it completely. I was very glad to see her as the Justice was an old patient of mine, and a man for whom I had a great regard.

Sincerely yours,
