(Letter to Dr. Thomas Lewis)
(typewritten)

14th February, 1912.

From the Regius Professor of Medicine, Oxford.

Dear Lewis,

No. I think the difficulty is that we have not got Einthoven's programme. He writes declining my dinner because he is engaged to you that evening, but does not say which evening! We can easily arrange it when you have found out about the Chelsea meeting, - and if you and Mackenzie and others have not been asked to discuss his paper, (and if he does not exhaust the whole subject,) we might have him in the afternoon at the Royal Medical Society and have our myocardial symposium at the Athenaeum in the evening.

Sincerely yours,

WM OSLER
