

From the Regius Professor of Medicine, Oxford.

12th November, 1912.

Dear Garrison,

I am very sorry to hear of the death of the dear old gentleman.[†] I had not noticed it in the telegraphic reports, but Nixon sent word from Bristol.

Life did not owe him anything, and he did a great work for us all. As you know, we became very much attached to him at the Johns Hopkins, and I have delightful memories of his visits in the early days, when he lectured on Medical Jurisprudence. Please express to the family from me my warmest sympathies.

Sincerely yours,

Wm. Osler.

P.S. Klebs showed me the proof sheets of the VR with Historical books in Surgeon General's Library. Could I have a set as they would be useful. I have just had the gift your historical Library of medicine.
