

(Reply)

CUS417/115.105

London,

May 29th, 1913.

My dear Sir William:

Your kind invitation is even better than your flowers. I am going to run down to Oxford and spend a Sunday with you some time before long - you may be very sure of that. As for next Sunday I am sorry that it is impossible. I have not yet found myself, here. This does not mean that other people have not found me however!

Many thanks about the Athenaeum. They have been kind enough to send me notice that they have put me on the honorary membership list.

With very hearty appreciation, I am

Sincerely yours,

W. H. Page.