

Oxford, 2 May, 1914.

Dear Jacobs;

I do not know anything particular about the Russian mineral oil, which, I do not suppose, is any more effective than parafin.

I do hope the Vichy treatment will be helpful. I know it is often very satisfactory in the large bowel troubles. When do you go, and what will be your address?

We have the Hadleys with us. He is giving the course of lectures on American History. The first one yesterday was delightful.

I am glad you like the Focke item.

With love to Mrs. Jacobs,

Sincerely yours,

W.O.
