

From the Regius Professor of Medicine, Oxford.

5, February, 1915.

Dear Garrison,

Miss Acland was delighted with the galleys of Billing's Life. I do not suppose she had time to write before she left for Madeira. You are going to make a very attractive story, and that whole war record is of extraordinary interest just now.

I am trying to finish that Early Printed Medical Books paper. It is due for the coming volume of the Transactions of our Bibliographical Society. They were so pleased with their medical president that they reelected me for another period!

Everything goes on smoothly here. Frost-bites, cold-bites, and cerebro-spinal fever are the things which have been interesting me specially. The latter is a new thing to break out in camps in England.

With greetings to your Chiefs.

Sincerely yours,

Wm. Osler