

(Col. Birkett, O.C. McGill Unit)

FROM THE REGIUS PROFESSOR OF MEDICINE, OXFORD.

(typewritten)

16, February, 1915.

Dear Birkett,

Mills died suddenly on the 13th, having had one or two preliminary attacks. He had been remarkably well, able to do a great deal physically, and deeply interested in his music. It is a happy ending to a somewhat unhappy life. Will you tell Francis I will send an obituary notice for the Journal? I am sending a short account to the Lancet and to the British Medical Journal.

Summary

11

We are hoping to hear every day that Revere has been assigned for preliminary work to the Canadian Hospital at Clevedon, where he could get some experience.

Let me hear if I can do anything for you at any time.

Sincerely yours,

W^m Osler.
