

13 Norham Gardens.

W.O. to J. George Adami.
Sunday. (1915)

(handwritten)

Dear Adami,

That is indeed a sad loss.* Poor fellow! Do you suppose it was suicide? He seemed such a nice chap. All goes well here - the country is standing up well and the army has done splendidly. We are very busy here, so much to do with so many people coming and going. I hope to hear from Keogh that he can take the McGill unit.

Love to the family,

Yours,

Wm. O.

J.G.A. * The sudden death of Professor C. Mines (early in 1915), who had been Prof. of Physiology but a few months at McGill - the most promising of the younger British Physiologists.