Sir William has copies of the new parts of the Edition that Dr. Penrose has taken over and I think some more forms (?) are soon going by someone else. It seems a safer way to send it. Perhaps Col. Bihett will take some if he is going. He comes here Saturday for a few days from Bath and says he is much better. Sir William is beginning porter again tonight, if he doesn't take something his bones will come through his [his] skin if he has to ~~take~~ a week in bed with a cold as he usually does. He has a good appetite and sleeps quite well. If I can keep him well during the winter he may gain again in the Spring.
