Dear Morse

So glad to have your two slips. What a tragedy, as you say, for the Germans to see their country a byword among the nations, and all owing to those damned Prussians. I am glad dear old Virchow is dead. How splendidly he fought them.

I hope you are keeping well. We are very busy- war work of all sorts. Lady Osler's sister, Mrs Chapin, from Boston is in London and the severe enthusiasm and energy makes it hard for me to keep up with them

Sincerely yours
