

December

November 23, 1918.

From Oxford.

CUS 417/126. 571

Dear Libman:

I have just finished reading your papers. Thank you so much. The subacute endocarditis one is by far the best summing up of the disease which has appeared. What a remarkable experience you have had. The war has caused a great many during the past few years. We had a remarkable case with recovery at
? after months of fever, etc.

I hope you are better. The American troops are getting ready to leave England, and the hospitals are closing. We had twenty-five Denver Unit men here last Wednesday. It has been a wonderful demonstration of the power of America. I hope now she will consent to act the big brother to the small nations. I am keeping well - very busy with my library. I wish you could see it. So sorry to hear, only yesterday, that Dr. Jacobi had a fire in his house. I will write to him at once. We are having a very busy Xmas, - 2 Boston, 2 Montreal, 1 New Yorker, 2 B. C. and a Brooklyn man stopping with us.

Greetings to all old friends.

Yours ever,

Of course I appreciate very highly your kind references to my work.