Clinical

Chairs.

You will find out all about it in Sir George Newman's recent report to the Board of Education on medical education, and there is an important move on foot to establish just such Chairs in the London Schools. Personally, I do not like the idea of the whole-time clinical professor for reasons which you will see in a few weeks in a note which I am sending to the Lancet. At the Hopkins Janeway wrote after four years' experience "the part-time plan is, I believe, much better".
