

JOANNA BAILLIE
(1762-1851)

Scottish Poetess and Dramatist.

Born in Bothwell manse. In 1784 she went to reside in London and, in 1806, took up her residence at Hampstead where she remained until her death. She received an excellent education and, at an early age began to write poetry. Her greatest achievement is undoubtedly the nine Plays on the Passions. The most popular as well as the most powerful of these, the tragedy of De Monfort, was brought out at Drury Lane London, in 1800, with Kemble and Mrs. Siddons taking the leading parts. Her Family Legend was produced at Edinburgh in 1810 under Sir Walter Scott's auspices.

I need not tell you my very Dear Sister, How glad I am that my note to Mr Lockhart has pleased you. His ready answer agreeing to my request will be in your hands by this time inclosed in one from Agnes telling you that we have fixed our Day next Wednesday for having the pleasure of coming to you. — We shall take care to put Mrs Davie's Giddy's letters into Mrs Knox's hands to morrow and since you give us leave take a peep at it. the aspect of it is rather curious & confused.

Yours affectionately
 J Baillie

applied to the Surveyors of the Highways respecting the bad state of the Footpath in front of the Red Lion Inn, are under the necessity of soliciting the interference of the Magistrates upon the subject. In wet weather, this Path is in such a state as to be scarcely passable, especially for Ladies, and being the only way of getting into the Town and to the Church, the inconve=nience is very severely felt. It is, therefore, earnestly requested, that some means may be applied for the removal of this grievance, under which the said Inhabitants have too long been suffering, as well as that of the Crossing just above the Red Lion which is equally neglected.

My Dear Madam

I feel myself very much obliged to you for your kind note, and ought to have thanked you sooner, but a short & violent attack of rheumatism which is now nearly gone off, has prevented me. I longed indeed very much to hear about your amiable Sister, and should have been ungrateful if I had not been interested in her wellbeing after all the kindness she shew'd me during my indisposition, when she was at North-end. I am truly concerned to learn that her illness has been so long protracted: I hope the change of air in the Isle of Wight & the sea-bathing will entirely restore her - at least to her usual health. - Pray offer her my best regards when you write to her, and tell her that I have been able without the least inconvenience wrong to any one to spare her due number of books which she may therefore possess without any scruple.

My Sister & I are very much obliged to M^{rs} Hamilton, you for your kind invitation

To visit ourselves if it would give us both great pleasure should we be in your neighbourhood during the summer which, however, is not very probable, as we expect in a short time to go to Brighton for some weeks with M^{rs} Baillie who has great need of sea air to revive her after her long attendance on her Mother.

I remain,
My Dear Madam

Your faithful obliged &

J Baillie

P.S. If you would have the goodness to send me a few lines by & by to say how your Sister has star

her journey to the 7th of August I should be very much obliged to you. We shall be here for another fortnight. —

Sir

I beg you will accept my best thanks for the volume of Magazine, which you have had the goodness to send me and the obliging note that accompanied it. I received it from Cadendish Sq.^{re} only 3 days ago, else I should not have delayed my acknowledgments so long.

I consider myself as very much honoured in having had my writings mentioned by you so favourably in the Universal Magazine for Dec^r 1810; and you have no occasion to make any apology for what you have said regarding my comedies, for they have seldom met with better treatment from any of our critical writers. There is one thing, however, which you have hazarded respecting Women not possessing the talent for humour which I think you must now (thanks to Miss Edgeworth) be willing to retract, and that point being yielded for the honour of the sex, I shall be satisfied, let my own claim be regarded as it may. — There are many articles besides that in which you have given me so much credit, that are able & interesting, and I have also to thank you for the instructing amusement it will afford me for days to come.

I have the honour to be

Sir

Your obliged & obedient servant

My dear M^{rs} Bartley

You were kind enough to say that M^r Bartley & you would prefer coming to us the beginning of the month when there is a moon, will you dine with us then next Tuesday or Wednesday? Our dinner hour shall be half past five, and if you are disposed to walk on the Heath, come to us as early as you please. We shall be glad to know which of the days you fix upon as soon as may be convenient. With kind regards to M^{rs} Bartley in which my sister begs to join me. I rest,

My Dear M^{rs} Bartley

Sincerely & afft^{ly} yours
Baillie
