Dear Mr. Buxton

I have referred your letter to the writer of the article on Balkan Diplomacy & he sticks to it that his statement about the offer made to Bulgaria is correct. ~~No~~ It is however apparently the case that the offer was made without the concurrence of Serbia or Greece, - their consent not being asked until later. Bulgaria might therefore perhaps say that the offer was not secure, - at least at that moment. But the question involves so many intricacies & so much that it is still uncertain with regard to Bulgaria's attitude at different periods that it is hard to make any statement against which something could not be said.]

Yours very truly
G. W. Prothero
