Dear Dr Sharpe,

I wrote a few days ago to your daughter inquiring when she expected to have the butterflies divided, but have had no reply; I hope she is not ill. I am so anxious to finish up the division of the Natural History curiosities my companion and I brought from South America, that not hearing from your daughter quite worries me. Mr. Chubb has kindly sent me the humming birds, and I shall be fix up the first spare day, & take you in the car on some of the trips you mention.

I hope this restricted journey will suit you - & I will call at 8.30 sharp on Monday - & you could start at 8, & the

Dear Mr Sharpe,

Many thanks for your letter. I am afraid that we could not do all you want on this trip, as my nephew & I ~~must~~ must be at a place 10 miles north of ~~from~~ Okehampton Okehampton, in Devon, on the evening of Tuesday 29th & therefore will sleep at Salisbury on the Monday.

Basing, I imagine, is only a mile or two from Basingstoke, which is 47 from London - if we leave you down at 8.30 am. we should be there by 11. - I do not know how long we should be ^{at Basing} there - to suit your plans & see that is to be seen - But I was counting on leaving Basingstoke at 2, going on via Amesbury, to Stonehenge (34 miles) & then on to Salisbury, 7 miles ^{more} ~~more~~ in time to see the Cathedral before dark. if we can - & on next morning to Exeter Newbury would be too much not at the way - to fit in with this, his affair - especially if we were to spend any time there, or at places near.

It is a nuisance being tied to time, as I am - on this journey, but after I return from
